

Stringfever

Brothers Giles, Ralph and Neal Broadbent and their cousin, Graham - are four world class musicians playing five and six - stringed electric violins, viola and cello in a truly original show. Stringfever's unique, acclaimed version of Ravel's "Bolero" has all four playing on one cello simultaneously. Then they challenge the audience to play "Name That Tune" as they race through 20 of the best-loved film themes in one breathless arrangement. Their helter-skelter 007 James Bond medley is an absolute killer. The show ends with Stringfever's breathtaking signature finale, "The History of Music ... in 5 Minutes." Charisma, humor, energy and a distinctive use of custom-made "Violectra" instruments create an experience that can only best be described as ... Stringfever!
