BIOGRAPHY: SOME GUYS HAVE ALL THE LUCK

People stop Rob Caudill in airports for autographs. They stare at him in restaurants. And when he struts on stage, women scream themselves hoarse. Why? Because Caudill is a dead-on Rod Stewart Impersonator.

He's got the high-definition jawline, the shock of spiky blonde hair, but most importantly, he has the nose. Vocally, his distinctive, naturally-raspy voice sounds like the legendary Stewart, and his range easily nails every high note from Stewart's younger days. So, it's no surprise this singer has carved out a career 'recreating' Rod Stewart. From kicking out soccer balls to spinning mic stands, to belting out all of Rod's greatest hits - Caudill's high energy show is a must-see event for people of all ages.

When Rob was just seventeen, people started telling him that he looked like Rod Stewart - a phrase Rob would hear repeatedly from almost everyone he met for the rest of his life. He began his musical career after graduating high school and moving to Memphis, TN to study music at MSU. While in Memphis, Rob began playing bass for local bands around town and doing session work.

As bass player for a band called "The Breaks" Caudill got his first major opportunity when they signed to RCA Records. The Breaks' first single, "She Wants You", was played in heavy rotation on MTV music television which caught the attention of Bugle Boy Clothing, who used The Breaks for their first commercial on MTV.

After a few years, The Breaks disbanded, so Rob put together a group called "The Willys" that included legendary guitarist Shawn Lane. They quickly became one of Memphis' hottest bands. Rob also began doing session work with Joe Walsh of the Eagles and jammed with many others such as John Entwistle of the Who, along with members of Cheap Trick, Allman Brothers Band, Lynyrd Skynyrd, Survivor and Red Hot Chili Peppers just to name a few.

In 1996, he realized he couldn't escape the remarkable natural resemblance to Rod Stewart so he heeded the advice of Joe Walsh and began his tribute career. Rob put down his bass, bought some wild clothing and diligently studied lots of Rod's videos, vocals and mannerisms.

TWISTIN' THE NIGHT AWAY

Now, more than a 15 years later, he is still spinning his mic stand and kicking soccer balls out to audiences everywhere.

When he leaves town he is armed with his "Tonight's the Night Band," a repertoire of more than 100 Stewart songs (covering everything from the beginning years of The Faces to the Great American Songbooks), and a wardrobe of loud, mostly custom made suits that match Rod Stewart's attire to a tee.

He has been working with the world famous Legends in Concert show out of Las Vegas for the past 15 years. He also works independently doing a high energy two hour show and claims "I've got the greatest job in the world, making a living doing something I love."

TESTIMONIALS:

"Rob's voice and look is unbelievable. It is like looking at Rod Stewart himself."
John Entwistle of "The Who"

"Rob is Rod!
No doubt about it. This is one impersonator that will make you do a double take. He is that good."
Joe Walsh of "The Eagles"

"The #1 Rod Stewart Tribute Artist is Rob Caudill, hands down!
A show not to be missed."
Tutti Legends Magazine

"I have known Rob Caudill for a number of years. Though I have never hired him or he hired me to play with his show, and I would perform with him anytime. I consider him a good friend and top notch professional! I know the man very well. Rob gives tribute to Rod Stewart. I have known Rod since 1968 when he was with Jeff Beck. Rod and I have written together, four of his hits: Do Ya Think I'm Sexy, Young Turks, Infatuation and Crazy 'Bout Her. I was also partly responsible for Rod, Jeff Beck and I recording People Get Ready which was an MTV video hit! Rob is a 6 out of 1-5. A stone pro!!"
